BERGDOLL SAYS UNITED STATES HAS HIS LOVE

Hopes Some Time To Be 'Worthwhile Part Of This Country'

UPHOLDS DEMOCRACY

Asserts He Has Paid And Is Willing To Pay Penalty

NEW YORK, May 29.—(AP)—Grover Cleveland Bergdoll, World war draft dodger, proclaimed his love for the United States today and expressed a hope that he would have an opportunity some time to show that he could be a "worthwhile part of this country."

Bergdoll, who finally surrendered to military authorities when he returned from Germany after 19 years of exile, sent out a plea from his cell on Governor's island that the public treat him "as a matter of fairness," like any other prisoner "who is taking his punishment."

In a four-page statement issued through his attorney, Harry Weinberger, the man who became notorious as the country's No. 1 "slacker" denied emphatically that he had offered his services to Germany during the war.

"I was a conscientious objector at the time of the draft," he said.

Bergdoll said he had returned voluntarily to face a five-year jail sentence "because time has only increased my appreciation of what a free country really means."

"It was only when I realized that some of my children were approaching school age," he said, "that I knew poignantly that I wanted them to go to free schools, free from hate and free from religious hatred, free from regimentation and free in a democracy dedicated to liberty."

At the same time he emphasized that "nothing in Germany or Europe had anything to do with his desire to return."

"No one in Germany expected war, and as an American citizen I would not have been drafted," he said.

Suggesting that some of his critics compare his patriotism with that of Ex-

REV. C. K. SMITH CLASS SPEAKER

Addresses Parish High School At Baccalaureate Exercises Here

Baccalaureate exercises were held for the more than 300 members of the Ouachita Parish High school in the school auditorium Sunday at 3 p.m. The stage was decorated with large baskets of hydrangea and other late spring flowers.

The entire central part of the auditorium was reserved for the graduating class members who filed into the room to the strains of the processional played by Mrs. Audie W. Moffett. A selection, "At Eventide It Shall Be Bright," was presented by a girls trio composed of Georgia Bell Goza, Frances Smith and Irvie Lee Humble. Following scripture reading and prayer by Rev. C. K. Smith, pastor of the First Methodist church in West Monroe, the sermon was delivered by him.

He took for his text "So Near To Success," Matthew 19:16-26, in which the rich young man was told to sell all he possessed to follow the Master, and he turned away because he had great possessions.

He said in part: "The man in the lesson went to Jesus to ask a question no human being could answer for him. He asked what was required that he might inherit eternal life. Jesus asked him a series of questions all of which were answered in the affirmative. All requirements he had kept from his youth up. But then he was told to sell all he had and give to the poor. He stood on the threshold of success yet turned back.

"When you step forth in the course of time with a college or university diploma you may think you have reached the pinnacle of success. I know of nothing that will develop a superiority complex more than a university diploma but nothing will take it out of one faster than the battle with the world the next day after graduating and finding out that the world is not eagerly waiting to

JAPS SAY 936,345 CHINESE KILLED

TOKYO, May 29.—(AP)—Imperial Japanese headquarters estimated today that the Chinese had suffered 2,300,000 casualties between the start of the Chinese-Japanese conflict July 7, 1937, and April, 1939. A statement said that 936,345 bodies of Chinese had been counted on battlefields.

The Japanese death toll was set at 59,588, but no mention was made of the number of wounded or ill soldiers. The announcement showed that the Japanese lost more than 12,000 since last December and thereby indicated their casualty rate was increasing.

FRANK MURPHY TO SPEAK IN BATON ROUGE

Will Deliver Commencement Address At L. S. U. Tonight

NEW ORLEANS, May 29.—(AP)—Frank Murphy, United States attorney-general, rested here today after 7,000 miles of air travel in the preceding three days before going to Baton Rouge to deliver the commencement address at Louisiana State university tonight.

He was met at Shushan airport late last night by Governor Richard W. Leche after a flight from Houston, Tex. Previously he had been on the west coast.

In the party were J. Edgar Hoover, director of the federal bureau of investigation, Clyde Tolson, assistant to Hoover, and Matthew McGuire, assistant attorney-general.

In response to questions on appointment of a federal judge for the eastern Louisiana district, Murphy told reporters Governor Leche has been among those considered but that Leche had "discouraged" talk that he would be appointed. The governor did not comment.

The attorney-general said an appointment had been delayed because "rather than rush things up we had rather wait and get the best man possible for the job."

Murphy declared the F. B. I. prob-

MOTOR VEHICLE BUREAU ROBBED

Bold Holdup Occurs Shortly After Noon; Police On Case

A bold noon holdup occurred at the motor vehicle bureau, 212 North Second street, Monday, when a man with drawn gun held up Tony Marsala, the sole clerk on duty at that hour, and securing all the cash and checks from a cash drawer, departed through the front door. Until a checkup is made the sum secured will not be known but it is more than $100 in cash and probably a still larger sum in checks.

Police were immediately notified and are looking for a man, aged about 33 years, five feet eight inches tall, weight about 150 pounds. He wore khaki pants, white shirt, a light brown hat and needed a shave badly. Mr. Marsala said that the man, an entire stranger to him and unmasked, entered the place and walking to the counter pulled a gun and demanded that the money be turned over.

Marsala seeing the man meant business, opened a drawer where the money was kept and the man quickly pocketed the cash and checks.

"Don't move!" was his order to Marsala as he moved quietly and quickly out of the place. Mr. Marsala obeyed but as soon as the man disappeared, he telephoned the police.

JOKING MINER RESCUED FROM TOMB IN EARTH

Apparently Uninjured After 65 Hours Of Imprisonment

SHENANDOAH, Pa., May 29.—(AP)—Laughing and joking with rescuers, Robert Galligan, 25-year-old anthracite miner, was dug out of a coal hole early today, apparently uninjured after 65 hours' imprisonment under tons of rock and dirt.

Rescuers who had toiled unceasingly, first with a steam shovel and then with pick and shovel, reached Galligan at 12:55 a.m., eastern standard time. Hoisted up a 75-foot deep shaft, Galligan greeted fellow miners on the surface with "gimme a ciggie (cigarette) and let me sit down a while."

He was rushed to a hospital where physicians said he was suffering slightly from shock.

A sudden slide of rock trapped the miner at 10 a.m., eastern standard time Friday as he worked in the mine, one of the many so-called bootleg workings which dot this eastern Pennsylvania hard coal section. Two companions escaped.

Galligan's 80-year-old father, Patrick, who had kept vigil at the scene from the time his son's plight was learned, was among the several hundred spectators who witnessed the rescue. The son greeted his father with "Hiya, pop. I'm okay but a little hungry."

Loose dirt covering Galligan's refuge, a small chamber which did not cave in, made the rescuers task doubly difficult. Toward the end the rescuers worked two and three at a time in a space only four feet square under the constant threat that they too might become engulfed by new slides.

A one-inch pipe driven through the wall of dirt into the miner's tomb early last night gave Galligan air. When the weary, mud-coated rescuers

TOM PENDERGAST GOES TO PRISON

LEAVENWORTH, Kans., May 29.—(AP)—Tom Pendergast, Kansas City political boss, drove through the federal penitentiary gates here at 8:45 o'clock this morning to begin a 15-month sentence for income tax revision.

The political leader arrived in his own automobile.

He was sentenced to prison after he pleaded guilty to dodging taxes on $443,550 in 1935 and 1936. The government charged he received $315,000 of the total for his influence in bringing about the compromise of Missouri's $9,500,000 fire insurance rate case.

His aide in this manipulation, R. Emmett O'Malley, former state insurance superintendent, also was scheduled to enter the prison today to serve a year and a day for income tax evasion on the $62,500 paid him in the insurance deal.

Pendergast's car, driven by Robert P. Lyons, an aide of the "boss," turned into the east road on the reservation and a guard quickly jumped on the running board and escorted Pendergast through the service gate of the prison. In the car with Pendergast, was his son, T. J. Pendergast, Jr.

As soon as the 67-year-old prisoner surrendered, prison officials asked the United States Marshal at Kansas City to send the commitment papers.

NEW DEALERS HOPE TO BRING 1940 PROSPERITY

Politicians Remember Presidential Election Coming Up That Year

ROOSEVELT IN LINE

Apparently Won Over By Arguments Favoring Changes In Levies

WASHINGTON, May 29.—(AP)—The tax revision program is regarded by many politicians as a key part of the administration's efforts to get business moving at a good rate before 1940.

These politicians have not forgotten that a presidential election is coming up in 1940. Nor are they unaware of the part that a general air of prosperity and good business plays in such elections.

Not the least important factor in the chain of events surrounding the tax situation is a lessening tension between the factions of the Democratic party. Gestures of conciliation from both sides of the intra-party dispute have become evident. For the moment at least an armistice exists.

A few months ago President Roosevelt appointed a Virginia judge whom the two Democratic senators from that state disliked so much that they got the senate to reject the nomination. Hot words were exchanged over the affair, but the whole thing has been smoothed over by a new appointment which the Virginia senators joined in praising.

For months a running argument over tax revision was kept up between the White House and a group of Democratic senators headed by Harrison of Mississippi and backed by Vice-President Garner. The senators wanted particularly to get rid of the undistributed profits tax, which they considered a deterrent to business.

Less than ten days ago, they resumed the discussions as headed the

ST. MATTHEW'S GIVES DIPLOMAS

Class Of 1939 Graduates At Exercises Held Sunday Night

In an impressive ceremony held at St. Matthew's Catholic church, Sunday at 8 p.m., members of the high school class of 1939 received their diplomas.

The altar was made beautiful with many floral offerings and the graduates attired in white caps and gowns for the young women, and black caps and gowns for the men, made a pretty sight as they marched into the church to the strains of a processional played on the organ.

The address to the class was delivered by Father Broussard who expressed his pleasure at being invited to address the class. The world today, he said, is filled with irreligion and with religious persecution as shown today in such countries as Germany, Russia and Spain. He said that the spread of the Catholic doctrine is needed now more than ever before. Right now we need the faith of our forefathers, he asserted. It is the duty of Catholics to make known to a torn and warring world the principles that have been the hope of the world for more than 1900 years, he said.

Too many Catholics are Catholics on Sunday, Father Broussard said, and he

ALL MEN TAKEN FROM SQUALUS WRITE REPORTS

Cause Of Accident Expected To Be Learned When Craft Raised

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., May 29.—(AP)—While a crew of 60 divers continued their laborious job of readying the sunken submarine Squalus for its trip from a watery grave, Commander A. E. Stone, navy chaplain, announced today special memorial day services for the 26 victims would be held tomorrow.

After the regular Decoration day exercises, held annually, the 33 survivors and relatives of the Squalus' dead will assemble in the Portsmouth navy yard auditorium. Music, the singing of hymns, special prayers and benediction will be included in the service.

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., May 29.—(AP)—While divers renewed operations today preparatory to salvaging the sunken submarine Squalus and its ghostly crew of 26 dead, navy officials scanned written reports of the 33 survivors in an attempt to ascertain what happened on the fatal dive last Tuesday.

Asserting each one of the men rescued with the escape bell had written his story of the tragedy, Lieutenant Commander John B. Longstaff said "the purpose of these written statements is to get a permanent record of the men's versions of the disaster early before minor events are forgotten.

"Sometimes," he said, "these minor events are the key to the solution. The commanding officer is also preparing his official report to the navy department."

Longstaff, aide to the commandant of the navy yard here and one of those rescued when the submarine S-5 sank in 1920, said all the Squalus survivors were back on active duty.

After the sinking of the Squalus was discovered, navy officials ex-

Snite's Visit To Miracle Spot Gets Much Attention

By DeWitt MacKenzie
(Associated Press Foreign Affairs Writer)

NEW YORK, May 29.—Rarely does a drama of individual suffering attract such world-wide attention and sympathy as has that of young Fred Snite, Jr., the 28-year-old Chicago sufferer from infantile paralysis who has miled his way through three years in an "iron lung" and now has journeyed to the famous shrine at Lourdes, France, to return thanks for life.

French school children have started a "prayer crusade" for Fred's recovery. And many lands are watching sympathetically, just as they did when he made the dangerous trip back home from China, where he contracted the disease.

The little town of Lourdes nestles in the Pyrenees on the bank of the Gave du Pal. It is built at the foot of a hill, on which stands an ancient castle dating back to the middle ages. Comparatively few people had heard of Lourdes until 1858 when there were astonishing happenings news of which ran around the world.

A 14-year-old girl—Bernadette Soubirous—announced an apparition of the Virgin Mary in a grotto—a young man and beautiful lady, "lovelier than I have ever seen." Within a short time the child recorded seventeen more of these visitations, and related that the apparition had spoken to her.

Bernadette said that on one occasion the Virgin told her to drink of a mysterious fountain in the grotto. The existence of this spring wasn't known before. A little later the girl said she was instructed to tell the priests to build a chapel on this spot, and the church was erected.

Word quickly spread that miraculous cures of sickness, both mental and bodily, were effected at the shrine, and people began to flock to

MEMORIAL DAY OBSERVED HERE

Four Special Services Conducted To Honor Soldier Dead

National Memorial day falling on May 30, a week day, was observed in the Twin Cities Sunday with a series of appropriate services.

Members of L. B. Faulk post of the American Legion, attended in a body the 11 o'clock service at the First Presbyterian church when the pastor, Rev. Ernest D. Holloway, delivered a sermon suited to the occasion. At the same hour members of Rodney J. Hobbs post of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, similarly attended a memorial service at the First Baptist church, where they were addressed by the pastor, Rev. L. T. Hastings.

For the first time here a unique and impressive ceremony was held on the new traffic bridge over the Ouachita river at Louisville avenue by members of the United Spanish war veterans' auxiliary. A floral wreath was tossed into the swiftly-flowing waters of the river as a memorial to those soldiers who perished at sea. There was music and a ceremonial held in connection with the program.

Members of all veterans' posts and the public gathered at the Veterans of Foreign Wars plot in Riverview Burial park where the annual Memorial day service was conducted. The address of the occasion was delivered by Dr. C. Karlos Smith, an overseas veteran, and pastor of the West Monroe First Methodist church.

Veterans' graves in cemeteries in the Twin Cities and elsewhere in the parish were decorated with small American flags and flowers in keeping with the day that was observed.

BUS SAFETY SIGN BLAMED IN DEATH

BATON ROUGE, La., May 29.—(AP)—Keith Keowen, 16, placed the blame for an accident in which his brother, Carroll Keowen, 20, was killed yesterday on a school bus safety sign.

He told the coroner's jury called by Coroner Harry Johnston that he was driving a car with five youths inside and his brother and another boy riding the front fenders. Keith said he was unable to see a gravel truck at an intersection because of the sign. Carroll was injured when the two collided and died several hours later after a leg amputation.

COLLEGE HOLDS COMMENCEMENT HERE MONDAY

More Than 100 Receive Diplomas; Dr. Eells Is Orator Of Day

The seventh annual commencement of Northeast Junior college was held at the college auditorium Monday at 10 a.m., when more than 100 graduates received their diplomas. The speaker of the occasion was Dr. Walter Crosby Eells, executive secretary of the American Association of Junior colleges, and editor of the Junior College Journal, Washington, D. C. He took for his theme: "Education, Travel and Slavery." Likening our democracy to that of ancient Greece, he declared that he believed that it will continue.

He said in part:

"I desire to discuss some of the features of democracy as it was exemplified in the fifth century B. C., in the ages of Pericles in ancient Greece. At that time there was a concept of political freedom and individual responsibility which contributed to the so-called 'Golden Age.' One of the features of that time was the fact that there was universal education up to the age of 20 years, and they had at that time educational facilities that were similar to those of the present junior colleges.

"Next to education of liberal scope, there was travel to all parts of Greece so that one section of the country was familiar with other parts.

"In the city of Athens there were 150,000 slaves and 40,000 free persons. The slaves were needed as an essential part of Greek civilization.

"We today have changed distance into time, a place is so many minutes or hours distant rather than so many miles.

"While slaves were essential to Greek civilization, they are still essential to our civilization. But instead of human slaves we have mechanical slaves. Slaves of gas, electricity and thousands of other gadgets which do our bidding by the pushing of a button or pulling of a lever. They are needed to our civilization."

The speaker told how his grandparents were married in Massachusetts 101 years ago and on their wedding trip went to California as missionaries. The trip required six months time. Mail, he said, required that time to be carried from New York to San Francisco and a Boston newspaper was badly out of date when it arrived.

NOVELIST STEINBECK RECEIVES THREATS

SAN JOSE, Calif., May 29.—(AP)—Sheriff's deputies disclosed today Novelist John Steinbeck had received a letter and telegram from Reno, Nev., demanding money "or else."

Deputies Jack Gibbons and Eugene Denton said the letter was signed "Maurey B. Campbell" and demanded $400. The telegram, signed "Melancholy Black," asked no specific sum. The deputies said they believed both were from persons in straitened circumstances.

Reno police and postal inspectors are cooperating with the sheriff's office in an investigation.

Steinbeck's novels deal chiefly with problems of western migratory workers.

SEE PLANE AT WESTERN TIP OF SCOTLAND

Thomas H. Smith Now Believed To Be Flying Over England

OCEAN HOP SURPRISE

Takes Off For Europe Without Telling Parents Of Plans

LONDON, May 29.—(AP)—The British Press association reported tonight that a plane believed to be Thomas H. Smith's "Baby Clipper" was sighted off Saint Bees in Cumberland county, northern England, about 5:30 p.m., Greenwich meridian time (11:30 a.m., central standard time).

LONDON, May 29.—(AP)—A small airplane flying very high and believed by some to be Thomas H. Smith's tiny "baby clipper" was sighted at 4:15 p.m., Greenwich meridian time (10:15 a.m., central standard time), today over Wigtownshire, on the western tip of Scotland, headed toward England. The plane which was coming from Ireland was seen about three miles inland.

Nearly two hours earlier a high-flying airplane similarly described was seen passing over Londonderry, Northern Ireland, in the direction of Engand.

SMALL PLANE PASSES OVER LONDONDERRY

LONDONDERRY, Northern Ireland, May 29.—(AP)—A small plane passed over here this afternoon and while there was no immediate identification some thought it might be that of Thomas H. Smith, American flier attempting to span the Atlantic in his light "baby clipper."

The plane, which was flying at a high altitude, came from the direction of the Atlantic.

It passed over Londonderry at 2:20 p.m., Greenwich meridian time (8:20 a.m., central standard time).

The plane was heading toward England, and if it was the "baby clipper" it apparently had followed the route the late Amelia Earhart flew when she crossed the Atlantic from Harbor Grace, Newfoundland, May 21, 1932, and landed near Londonderry.

It was seen by hundreds who had been scanning clear skies for Smith's 670-pound one-motor plane which took off from Old Orchard Beach, Me., at 5:47 a.m., eastern standard time, Sun-

NEVILLE HAS BACCALAUREATE

Exercises Held In First Methodist Church Sunday Morning

The baccalaureate exercises of the Neville High school, class of 1939, were held in the First Methodist church Sunday at 11 a.m. when the pastor, Rev. W. C. Scott, preached the sermon.

The altar was handsomely decorated with seasonal flowers and with a profusion of magnolia blossoms. Dr. Verne Kelsey presided at the organ.

Members of the class occupied seats in the main part of the auditorium. The young men were attired in dark-colored caps and gowns, the young women in white caps and gowns, affording a pleasing color scheme. The class numbered 100 and was the largest in the school's history.

The pastor took for his theme "The Merchant's Quest."

He said in part:

"Again the kingdom of heaven is like unto a merchant seeking goodly pearls and who when he found one pearl of great price went and sold all that he had and bought it." Matthew 13: 45, 46.

"For several years you have been under the care and instruction of faithful teachers seeking to instill knowledge to serve you in the years to come. You have now completed prescribed courses and will receive di-

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Edgar McKenzie announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Eleanor Yvonne McKenzie to Mr. Lea Thompson, son of Mr. Dhu Thompson of this city, in Plaquemine, La., on January 7, 1939.

Mr. and Mrs. Thompson, students at the Louisiana State university, Baton Rouge, are now at home to their friends with Mrs. Thompson's parents on St. John street.

High school seniors were kept busy dodging rain drops Sunday evening. Members of St. Matthew's senior class found it necessary to wrap themselves in their cellophane raincoats before attending the commencement address at St. Matthew's church. Safely indoors, all thought of inclement weather was forgotten in the pleasure derived from the thrilling talk made by Father Broussard. Many gems of thought were contained in his powerful address.

The group of Neville High school seniors, entertained on board the Noe's Ark by Mrs. James A. Noe complimentary to Miss Mary Lavinia Inabnet, were safely on board before the rain came and were content to remain there until the weather cleared.

All out-of-door activities planned for Sunday night were of necessity cancelled due to the torrential rain. Several al fresco affairs honoring high school seniors were enjoyed, however, indoors, as these compliments, coming on the heels of graduation, couldn't be postponed until a later date.

Mrs. E. F. Kenny's compliment to members of the graduating class of the Barkdull Faulk Grammar school was the al fresco affair at her suburban home on the Winnsboro road.

Tables covered with gayly colored linens were placed in the grape arbor, conveniently near the barbecue pit where wieners were roasted over the glowing coals.

Enjoying the many courtesies extended by Mrs. Kenny were: Theo Belle McClain, Lucille Mosely, Mary Sue Luckett, Marie Wilhite, Helen Kitchens, Ernest Hammonds, James Hobbs, W. C. Miner, Charlotte Coghlan, Jean Chapman, Virginia Snowden, Concetta Medica, Mary Pat Rust, Mary Catheryne Cole, LaVerne Miner, Lavana Miner, Lenora Carter, Rema Jane Farr, Edwin Robinson, Vestal Humphreys, Jewel Mae Kenny, Erline Isabelle Kenny, Mrs. E. M. Hammonds, Miss Julia Wossman, Mrs. J. W. Granberry, Mrs. A. W. Duncan, Miss G. Castles, Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Kenny.

Announcement is made of the marriage of Miss Etta Mae Reeves and Mr. Clement Trichell, Saturday evening, May 20, at the home of Mr. Trichell's aunt, 307 Sixth street, with Rev. H. A. Stoddard officiating in the presence of relatives and a few friends.

The bride was attended by Miss Alta Trichell and Mr. William Trichell served as best man.

Mr. and Mrs. Trichell are now at home to their friends in Prairie, La.

Mrs. Curtis Seaman entertained with an early morning swimming party at the municipal pool followed by a breakfast at her home, complimentary to Miss Elsie McDowell, the charming house guest of Mrs. Jesse Hilton.

Miss Nora Lee Butler, who has just completed a course of study at the General Assemblies Training school, Richmond, Va., was the guest last week of Mrs. Jack McClendon. Miss Butler was en route to Tyler, Tex., to accept a position.

Mr. and Mrs. Leron Harper of West Monroe announce the arrival of their first child, a daughter, Martha Julia, at Riverside sanitarium, May 24.

Miss Nellie Jo Adcock arrived home from the state university, Baton Rouge, to spend the summer with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Adcock of West Monroe.

Mrs. Louis Landry motored to Baton Rouge on Sunday and was accompanied home by her daughter, Miss Jane Landry, student at the state university.

OLD HOME WEEK MURDER

by Phoebe Atwood Taylor

The Characters

Asey Mayo, Cape Cod sleuth.
Jane, ward of the murdered woman.

Yesterday: Eloise is found dead at the foot of the cellar steps. Asey thinks she was pushed.*

Chapter 41

'Stop, Look, Grab'

HAMILTON wandered around, peering at the old book case whose shelves were filled with preserves and "put-up" jars of vegetables and fruit. He even removed the lid from the old stone crock, and after sniffing at its contents, hastily replaced it. The odor of sauerkraut filled the cellar.

"Let's get back upstairs," Lane said. "I don't see anything here that's doing us any good. If she was killed, she was killed, and we might as well get to the Warren girl and get it over with."

"What?" Asey asked as they climbed back to the kitchen. "What's that?"

"Jane Warren. She came in the house after Eloise did. I saw her. She was here a couple of minutes. I saw her come and I saw her go."

"You didn't tell us about that."

"You didn't," Lane said tartly, "give me any chance to. Don't you want to amend your ideas, and say she fell or tripped, instead of was pushed?"

Asey shook his head. "Nope. Doc, how did Jane take it, when you told her Eloise was sick?"

"She said Eloise had eaten any quantity of lobster salad and peach shortcake with whipped cream for lunch," Cummings replied, "and had been taking soda mints by the pound ever since. I should say that Jane was philosophical, and more or less unmoved about it all. Eloise's stomach and its eccentricities are hardly a closed book to anyone who ever slept under the same roof with her, you know."

"Didn't seem to see anythin' strange about your comin', or your wife's comin'?"

"She said it was thoughtful, and that she couldn't possibly have managed the tourists alone."

"Brazening it out," Lane said. "Remember what she threatened, Asey. One more word from Eloise about Mike Slade—"

"You're so obvious, Lane." Cummings began to put things back into his bag. "I knew you'd say that I've been waiting for you to say it. Tell me, what sort of things do you eat, usually?"

"I eat what I can get." Lane was annoyed. "What do you think?"

"Specifically, what?"

"Oh, meat and fish and vegetables—"

"Obvious foods," Cummings said cheerfully. "See how it works out, Asey? Eloise eats fussy things—you get the idea."

"You tell me," Asey said, "what the feller we want feeds on, an' I'll pay your grocery bills for a year. Hamilton, bring Jane in, will you?" He lifted the curtain and peered outside. "The tourists seem to have let up."

He led Jane into the dining room and motioned her to a seat from which she could not possibly see the blanket-covered figure on the living room couch.

"How's Eloise? Was it indigestion again? And Asey, wasn't she sporting about that sock! I've felt a beast. Sara laid me out in lavender, in a few well-chosen words. Oh, I'm so tired!"

"Jane," Asey said, "what'd you come indoors for, just after Eloise?"

"Cards. Shop cards, you know. Business cards. Those tourists were yelling for 'em, and the ones in the barn had all been taken off."

"Where were they?"

'Appendicitus?'

"THE cards? In the corner cupboard here. See, I spilled some on the floor, I was in such a rush. D'you know what Eloise said? She said if I could sell that oak chest, I could have the money for myself, and I did! To a friend of General Philbrick's. Now I have a dowry, isn't that swell? Mike told you about the man who bought his pictures—"

"Did you go into the kitchen when you came in?"

"No, I just got the cards and went out. Asey—" she looked at him, "whatever's the matter now? Does Eloise think she has appendicitis again? Because she did have her appendix out, and Mary has a thing signed by the doctor saying so. She had to get it, because Eloise has fits of thinking that they just opened her up and peered at her appendix, and left it there. Why, I can't imagine. I should think it would be one of those things you'd just naturally sense, whether you had an appendix or not, no matter how much you mistrusted doctors. Asey, we're going to be married next week, did Mike tell you?"

"Jane," Asey said, "Eloise has had an accident."

"A—what? What happened?"

"On the cellar stairs. She—"

"Oh, I thought you meant she was killed, like Mary—you nearly took my breath away! Is she badly hurt? I hope not. You know, she's terrified of those stairs. The three of us always worry about them. We used to have a sign tacked up, saying 'Stop, Look, Grab.' Is she badly hurt?"

Involuntarily Asey looked toward the living room. Jane followed his gaze and saw the figure on the couch.

"Oh," she said. "Oh!"

She got up and went into the other room. In a moment she came back.

"You did your best to tell me, didn't you?" she said in a flat voice. "Well, tell me. Everything. I suppose she just didn't fall."

"No, Jane, did any of you—you, or Mary or Eloise, ever really fall down those stairs?"

"Never. We were so afraid we took particular care, all of us."

"What about that bruise on your shoulder?"

Jane flushed. "Oh, Kay told you? You want to know the truth? Eloise struck me."

Asey paused in the process of lighting his pipe.

"That's the truth," Jane said. "Monday. She was mad with me. She often was. She was jealous because she thought Mary cared more for me than for her. Mary didn't, of course, but—well—can't you see how hard it would be to be affectionate about Eloise? She—she cluttered so. Everything she did or said was cluttery. Then she'd be perfectly swell, like she was about my seeking her the other night. And just as you thought how swell she really was, she'd tip the ink bottle over your knees, or something, and be more cluttery than ever. And Mary wasn't cluttery, and it was hard for her—"

"Tell me about these paths to the ice house," Asey said.

'It Drove Me Crazy'

"I DON'T know anything about them," Jane told him. "I was scared to death to set foot off the place here, if you want to know. I—I can't explain, but there always seemed to be something so evil about those swamps, and the mists, and everything. It's a queer place."

"You got that gun license 'cause you was scared?"

Jane nodded. "Mike said it was foolish and there was nothing to be afraid of, and then he realized how I felt, and he said he'd get me a gun, and it would make me feel better, even if I couldn't use it so well." She sighed. "After I learned more about shooting, he was going to get me a gun—"

"Where'd you meet Mike, Jane, down by the ice house?"

"Truly, Asey, I never went near the place but once. I'm scared around here. Like Kay, I'm a city person. The country quiet and noises simply terrify me. I usually met Mike at the beach. He couldn't come here because Eloise raised such a rumpus. It was all open enough."

"I wonder," Asey said, "who did go down there by the pond from this house?"

"I don't know, but it always seemed to me I heard droves of people around. Mary laughed at me and said it was my imagination, but she wouldn't stay here alone at night! There was a noise that drove me crazy, a sort of laugh. It was the most uncanny thing, but I found out what it was."

"You found out—what?"

"A whistle sort of arrangement, only it looks more like an ocarina than a whistle. I found it out by the barn, weeks ago. I decided what I'd been hearing was local boys and girls, parking around—those back roads are simply stopped up with cars, sometimes. I've heard the sound since, but it hasn't bothered me so much now that I know what it was. I thought at first it was an escaped lunatic. It sounded that way. Probably some kids signaling."

"Haven't got the thing now?" Asey asked. "Or do you know where it is?"

"I stuck it in the fire. I think it came from candy, or popcorn, or something like that. You know, one of those gadgets they put in packages—Asey, what'll we do about Eloise?"

"We'll have to explain it as we did about Mary. Jane, did you kill Eloise?"

She looked him squarely in the eye. "No, on my word of honor, I didn't. I thought I could have, the other night. Things were all mixed up. Once I'd really taken a stand about Mike, they all cleared up. I—I think you believe me, but what about Lane and the others?"

"We've proved you couldn't have killed Mary," Asey said. "You was with Sara an' Jeff an' the rest when Kay an' I had our meetin's with the feller. We can't prove a thing about Eloise today, but I b'lieve you. I'll see to Lane."

Continued tomorrow.

WATER CHANGE MAY HALT TOOTH DECAY

WASHINGTON, May 29.—(AP)—On the basis of studies of school children in four Illinois cities the public health service said today that chemical control of public water supplies to reduce tooth decay "is no far-fetched possibility."

The survey showed an unusually small amount of dental defects among children of Galesburg and Monmouth, Ill., where water contains 18 and 17 parts per million of fluorides, a chemical substance.

Two or three times as much decay was found among children of Macomb and Quincy, Ill., where the water contains 0.2 parts per million of fluorides.

The health officers said, however, some other substance in the water might be a factor.

SAYS NAVY COULD REPEL ONE NATION

WASHINGTON, May 29.—(AP)—Admiral William D. Leahy, chief of naval operations, declares that the United States sea forces are adequate to protect the country from any single foreign power.

"There would be some difficulty in guarding America's sea frontier against possible combinations," Leahy said in a radio speech yesterday, "but the navy indulges in a hope that it would be able to provide a successful defense against some possible combinations."

The admiral, who will retire soon to become governor of Puerto Rico, praised especially the work of navy fliers during recent Caribbean maneuvers. Although 550 planes engaged in many day and night flights far out to sea, he said, "there was not a single casualty to personnel."

5,000,000TH PERSON ENTERS WORLD FAIR

NEW YORK, May 29.—(AP)—Twelve-year-old Douglas McMahon of Stamford, Conn., the 5,000,000th person to pass through the New York World's fair turnstiles, enjoyed a one-day reign as king of the exposition Sunday.

Outfitted in cowboy costumes, Douglas and his pal, Teddy Donahue, 13, led the grand parade and were given a free sponsored trip through the educational exhibits and the amusement area.

Sunny skies drew 291,953 persons, one of the largest throngs since the opening four weeks ago.

Coney island continued to outdraw the fair. Police estimated 500,000 crowded the beach resort.

give that job and to receive the new graduate with open arms.

"Education without religion produces a galvanized corpse. You may master all the arts and sciences and be on the threshold at the very door of success, but if you have not taken into account a living in accord with the principles of the Man of Calvary you can not help but be a failure. Every person on the threshold of success must open that door for himself. [illegible] as he passes in [illegible] he can not hand it down to his descendants. There was a time in America when a man or woman with a college diploma was assured of immediate economic success. There were places waiting to be filled. But that day is now gone. There are cases now of seventh grade daddies supporting their college-bred sons while the latter are waiting to secure jobs. I do not want to convey that the door of opportunity is closed for all time. There never were more avenues that lead to success than right now in America, but also there are just as many or more that are leading to complete destruction.

"You graduates have a long road to go. Take Christ into your consciousness [illegible] Master His book as you would master your other textbooks. Ask yourself as did the young man: 'Master, what lack I yet?' The young man in the Scripture was a [illegible] above the average. He [illegible] success, the answer to the question [illegible] could answer. Just one thing [illegible] between him and success. He [illegible].

"Handicapped [illegible] life in a cotton [illegible] England, David Livingstone [illegible] barriers and carried the [illegible] to dark savage Africa. His work still lives. Dwight L. Moody [illegible] more than any man to the kingdom of God in America. He also overcame handicaps. He achieved success. So your lives are to be successful or failures as you will to make them.

"It takes but half a minute to destroy a life and a character that has taken years to build up and which represents the toil and sacrifice of parents and teachers.

"May you graduates, as you go forth from here, be ready to make such sacrifices that are required to choose that better part in life which will build character and make for your eternal salvation."

The Pilgrims Chorus (Tannhauser) by a mixed glee club concluded the program. Following the benediction the class members filed out while the congregation awaited their departure.

"From 1932 to 1937 there were only 35 spy cases investigated," he said. "In 1938 there were 692."

The attorney-general said he would speak on this "curious century in which we live" at the Louisiana State university commencement.

FACTS ABOUT FLIGHT
(By Associated Press)

Here are the facts of Thomas H. Smith's attempt to span the Atlantic in a light airplane:

The plane: The "baby clipper," a 670-pound craft with only a four-cylinder, 65 horsepower engine.

The fuel: 160 gallons of gasoline—enough to fly about 3,600 miles at a cruising speed of 100 miles an hour; enough for a flight of from 36 to 42 hours.

The take-off: From Old Orchard Beach, Me., at 3:47 a.m., eastern standard time, Sunday.

The time limit: thirty-six hours is up at 3:47 p.m., eastern standard time, today.

The goal: Associates said Smith would aim for Slyne Head, Ireland, a distance of 2,800 miles and hoped to reach Europe by 11 a.m. eastern standard time, today.

The possibilities: An arc drawn on a radius 3,600 miles from Old Orchard Beach cuts land from the northern tip of Scandinavia, across France and to the Atlantic coast on the northwest coast of Africa.

FATHER 'AMAZED' AT REPORT OF FLIGHT

CLARKSBURG, W. Va., May 29—(AP)—Thomas Smith, 24, [illegible] knee pants.

Shy, handsome and confident, Smith learned to fly before he was old enough to get a license to drive an automobile. By the time he was 20 he owned a couple of planes and operated an airport and aviation flying school here.

A few years ago he got into the "Caterpillar" club when he leaped to safety in a parachute after he was forced to abandon a plane in the rugged West Virginia mountains.

Characteristically, he took off for Europe without informing his parents. His father, Harvey Smith, was "amazed" at the report. A well-to-do lawyer and real estate dealer, the elder Smith had often backed Tommy's flying ventures.

Tommy's home town friends voiced confidence in his flying ability but many, after learning that he probably was fighting fog and rain, expressed doubt that he would reach Europe safely.

plomas. You are to be congratulated as you now pass one important milestone in your young lives. You must not say, 'I have finished my education,' for life is a continued education. When one has finished his mental development, he might as well make a complete surrender of himself. All hope of progress is contained in the ever forward urge to acquire knowledge.

"Secular education is a great thing and helps prepare for the battles of tomorrow. But there is still another side to education, the development of the soul. Long after the body crumbles away to dust, the soul of man will live on. Let us see that our education is well balanced, while we seek secular education let us not simply fill our heads with knowledge but also fill our hearts with knowledge from the Most High.

"The merchant in the text went forth seeking pearls. When he found one of great price he sold all that he possessed and bought it. Several salient facts loom above all else in connection with this text. The wise merchant possessed a definite purpose. There are many advantages to having a definite purpose. It is essential for joyful living. No purposeless soul is ever happy. There is much discomfort through sheer aimlessness. This merchant knew what he wanted and thereby showed his definite purpose. A great purpose makes for power. There is enough power in the weakest of us if focalized to conquer almost any situation in life. To focalize requires a definite purpose.

"Daniel had a purpose in his heart and Babylon had to reckon with him. Babylon has long since passed on into history but the story of Daniel lives on and on.

"This merchant possessed the highest of purposes. He sought not a second best but the very best of values. Are we today seeking the best values? Is our purpose high like this merchant's purpose? This merchant looked for pearls. Are we looking for pearls? The best is in reach of us if we will pay the price.

"Are you reaching out after the trivial or for supreme values? Is your purpose high or low—are you seeking pearls?

"A certain business man sought to make a million dollars. He worked hard and denied his family to pile up money. When asked why he was so anxious to get a million dollars, he said it was so that he could tell the other fellow to go to the devil. His purpose was low and worthless. He was not seeking for pearls.

"Graduates if you sought for a prize what would it be? Where will you park when the sun goes down on life? How are you investing your time and talent? Are you selling out cheap?

MISTAKEN IDENTITY

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—A near-sighted customer in the Indian bazaar at the New York World's fair dropped a quarter into the hand of a dignified lady in rich Hindu garb.

"Tell my fortune," he said, "and no silly stuff."

The lady stiffened. So did the dark, distinguished man with her. They handed back the quarter and stalked out.

They were the maharajah and maharanee of Nepal.

pony express speeded mail and passenger service. Then came the overland railroad and later still highways and air mail, the latter having reduced the time from New York to San Francisco to 16 hours only.

The speaker lauded junior colleges as providing the bulwark of education for the masses and as one thing that should aid in keeping alive the principles of our democracy.

The junior college idea is only beginning but he said it has doubled in numbers every five years. In California he showed there are 55,000 junior college students and if Louisiana had a proportionate enrollment, there would be 18,000 junior college students in this state, he said.

In proportion to population and development of mechanical horsepower, the speaker declared that we have the equivalent of 93 slaves for every person in the country, mentioning the mechanical facilities that each home now possesses and also lauding the tremendous projects of Muscle Shoals, Boulder dam, Grand Coulee dam and other enormous governmental projects.

In closing, the speaker declared that there are still frontiers, not geographical but commercial, scientific, moral and otherwise, to conquer. He declared in closing that he is confident that graduates of junior colleges will play an important role in keeping alive the principles of the nation.

Graduation, he declared, was something that signified the end but that commencement signifies the beginning and presents a worthwhile challenge to all young men and women.

The program was opened with the Processional Festival March by the Northeast Junior college orchestra, Lowry Jefferson director. Invocation was by Rev. B. T. Watson, pastor of the First Christian church.

A violin solo, Sonata in A Major, was rendered by Miss Clothilde Read, Mrs. Florence Ziegler Allbritton, accompanist.

Following the address, diplomas were awarded and the recessional, Coronation March, completed the program.

pressed the belief the sea rushed into the submarine through an open air induction valve, plunging the undersea craft 240 feet to the ocean floor. Later, however, a rescued crew member said warning lights indicated all valves were closed when the craft submerged.

Officials were confident that once the $4,000,000 Squalus was raised and in drydock, the cause of the accident would be learned.

While prayers were said in Portsmouth churches yesterday for the dead, divers attached airlines to the forward section of the Squalus, increasing the air pressure in water-free compartments to guard against leakage and to bring the pressure within the craft nearer to that outside.

The underwater workers were hampered by freezing temperatures which froze their airlines. Under such such conditions the diver's helmet becomes clouded and he eventually is affected. Officers said they would "dehydrate" the oxygen and helium mixture being used by the divers to remedy the situation.

Salvaging, which may take a week, involves raising the submarine by her own buoyancy, aided by huge pontoons. At present the Squalus rests at a ten-degree angle with her stern resting in the mud. Progress has been made in freeing her deck of gear which might interfere with actual salvaging.

Referring to the victims of the disaster in his sermon in the North Congregational church, the Rev. Arthur A. Rouner said they "served their country just as the men who have died previously on the battlefield. They will enable us to have an adequate defense and to prepare their country to resist aggression."

A Georgia police chief robbed a bank and drove around town tossing away the money. . . . An English judge fined a fisherman for mistreating his bait. . . . A Philadelphia man explained he stole 806 pounds of butter to finance a divorce.

A man was arrested in Connecticut for reckless blowing on a boat whistle and an Alabama man was arrested for reckless driving in a steam roller.

A Chicago hotel offered to provide dinner parties of 13 with a dress suited dummy, to avoid bad luck. . . . Superstitious contestants in an Indiana auto race made the driver of car number 13 withdraw.

Prevented from having a date with his girl, a Nebraska college student serenaded her from a sound truck . . . When a Philadelphia woman frantically phoned the fire department and engines rushed around to her house, she exclaimed, "Oh, I wanted a taxi."

After he and his wife had been separated 45 years, a Connecticut man asked for a divorce and after two weeks' courtship a 77-year-old West Virginia man married a woman of 89.

And just to top off the week, wind blew a tumbled-down Mississippi barn back into place, and the day the thermometer hit 100 in Kansas, it snowed in Montana.

SNITE'S VISIT GETS ATTENTION

Lourdes from far and near. As the fame of the shrine grew, the numbers increased until now it is estimated that some 600,000 people visit the place each day.

Not all these come for cures, of course. Some are tourists, but those seeking help have run to millions. Large pilgrimages are being made constantly.

The church authorities at Lourdes have kept track of all cases reported to them and thousands of cures have been claimed. Against the wall of the grotto, in which now stands a statue of the Virgin in white robe with blue scarf, as Bernadette described her, lean a veritable forest of crutches and canes which have been discarded by visitors.

Skeptics who do not believe in miraculous intervention have advanced various theories to interpret the occurrences at Lourdes. The Catholic encyclopedia in discussing this says that "the hypothesis of unknown forces of nature cannot be brought forward to explain the instantaneous cures of Lourdes." It adds:

"It is logically untenable. As a matter of fact, no natural cause, known or unknown, is sufficient to account for the marvelous cures witnessed at the foot of the celebrated rock where the Virgin Immaculate deigned to appear.

"They can only be from the intervention of God."

Before he was hoisted to the surface, Galligan was blindfolded to prevent injury to his eyes by the sudden emergence into a glare of floodlights erected to aid the rescuers.

wrong way up a dead-end street. They felt that they had been unable to convince Mr. Roosevelt that the changes should be made now.

Then the president had a week-end cruise with a member of the senatorial group. He gave the American Retail federation an outline of how he felt about taxes. A few days later Secretary Morgenthau was before the ways and means committee proposing the full list of changes which the senators had advocated. He said his proposal had the approval of Mr. Roosevelt.

This, and the good humor of committee members as they set about their task, appeared to promise fairly prompt action on taxes.

In several other fields, words were being sown which may grow up into a crop of new business stimuli. Secretary Hopkins gave a fresh outline of the things in business to which government was opposed, and proposed a study of methods to increase American imports. Secretary Wallace spoke of a world cotton conference. A. A. Berle, assistant secretary of state and one of the original "brain-trusters," produced a plan by which the government would help to supply small firms with the money they need to expand.

Justice Functions

Considered specifically, the revelations of venality and corruption in public life are cause for dismay.

It is not pleasant, nor is it conducive to confidence in officials of government, to learn judges are being driven out of office by reason of dishonesty and faithlessness to duty, that law enforcement officers are involved in corruption and that powerful political bosses have been operating in conflict with the law.

The whole unpleasant business, however, has its brighter side.

It is gratifying to know that the white light of day has at last been thrown into dark places, that men who have occupied positions of authority and of trust, and who have been unworthy of the honors conferred upon them, have at last been revealed in their true characters and have been called upon to face justice.

Bacon, wise but occasionally cynical, said that "laws were like cobwebs; where the small flies were caught and the great break through."

In far too many instances there is a substantial measure of truth in this observation, but of late there have been many evidences that the law is not a respecter of persons, that its far-reaching hand touches the big men at the top, the little men at the bottom, and also those judges and other agents who betray the people whom they are appointed to serve.

It is doubtful if the Department of Justice in Washington and the Internal Revenue department, whose officials and agents have been striking out in every part of the country in a determined effort to cleanse conditions in public, have ever been more energetically or more scrupulously administered.

The public, quick to condemn when men in high places fall, should both recognize and approve of this conscientious endeavor to reveal the truth and punish those who play fast and loose with duty and the law.

Getting Folks To Work

Our unemployment problem is a big one and must be solved. But there is one thing to be taken into consideration and that is that in our most prosperous times, we have never had all our people at work. There has always been a sizeable percentage of our population out of work because of: (1) Changing jobs. (2) Normal dismissals for incompetency, insubordination, incompatibility. (3) Short layoffs on account of repairs and "acts of God." (4) Indifference, reluctance or refusal to work.

So when plans are proposed that would put our ten million unemployed to work, it should be borne in mind that not all of those ten million unemployed could be put to work, or would allow themselves to be put to work.

The number of persons reported unemployed even during prosperous times, when anybody could get a job—when employers had to solicit employes—was five million, was it not? That being the case, haven't we five million persons for whom to find jobs—not ten million?

The Class Of 1939

Commencement orators soon will be doing their stuff. The thousands of young graduates of school and college will be listening to all manner of advice—some of it light, some of it heavy; some of it in line with youth's real opportunities, some of it well meant but impractical in so far as the world of actuality is concerned.

Our guess, however, is that the "Class of 1939" will survive all these rhetorical expressions and proceed to find vocations of social value and inner contentment. With its difficult and unsolved problems, America remains a land in which the free spirit can assert itself, granted a reasonable amount of training, ambition and the will to win.

These young graduates have not been subjected to academic suppression or scholastic dictation. The programs which they have completed have been conceived with a view to maximum intellectual liberty and individual creativeness. That is the American way, and it is reasonable to assume deep-seated appreciation of the blessings of freedom among these energetic, eager folk who are about to take their respective places amid the national scene.

New Minority Problem

When Hitler seized Czecho-Slovakia it was freely predicted that he was letting himself in for a new racial minority problem. For within the "German" racial area he then incorporated millions of non-German Czechs with a national life and culture that never can become German.

Those problems are already coming to the surface. The clamps of German ways of living and working, of Berlin decrees governing prices, wages, hours and the status of Jews are being closed on the Czechs.

The Czechs are in no position to resist forcibly. But the trade union movement has been driven into unity since March 15 by hints that high production, faster work will be demanded by the Germans in order to speed up the export trade which Hitler has said Germany must have or die.

It will remain to be seen just how far Hitler will be successful in dealing with an antagonistic and sullenly-hostile racial minority, the problem which has been the ruin of so many central European governments. Immediate prospects are none too rosy.

But Hitler can expect little sympathy. After all, he asked for it.

The supreme court is being asked to decide whether Scotch must come from Scotland. Remember the days when it used to come from American basements?

The Once Over

PORTRAIT OF A STRONG WOMAN

The strongest-minded woman—
Ah, what a woman she!
Her will is one of iron
With no resiliency.
Her firmness is astounding—
A quality that stirs;
I've never seen will power
As resolute as hers.
Her character's amazing—
She ranks among the great;
To praise such splendid backbone
I do not hesitate.
She doesn't look forbidding—
She's not a flinty dame;
She's charming but her firmness
Astounds me just the same.
She has a side that's weaker—
Milady she can be
Quite yielding on some issues,
As any one can see.
She'll weaken on her diet
And wobble at the knees
On any resolution
To count her calories.
She'll make new pledges loudly
On how to run the house
And easily forget 'em
As meekly as a mouse.
She'll sternly say, "No cocktails!"
And take a platform dry,
But then she'll get the shaker
And be as weak as I.
But all this doesn't matter—
She rates, as you will see,
As quite the strongest woman
In all our history.
Her firmness none can challenge,
There's no one even nigh
In what, in my opinion's,
The test of courage high.
Her strong will is colossal,
And here! the proof quite flat:
She never has, and will not
Put on a silly hat!

Our Children

By ANGELO PATRI

FOOD FATIGUE

One gets weary of the same food day after day. Cereal is good, and so is milk. Orange juice is about perfect, and toasted bread is very tasty. Spinach can be eaten with enjoyment, carrots too. But if you serve any one of these things day after day you will bring the child to the same place as the one Eliza Jane reached when she heard, "There's lovely rice pudding for dinner again." She hit the roof, and so did the pudding.

No grown up person would stand for spinach every day, nor for any other kind of food that became routine. Eating is not just a matter of the full stomach. It interests the whole being, body and spirit alike. The eyes take great interest in the matter. The color of the food, the style of its serving, the beauty of the entire arrangement pleases the eye and the vision lends strength to the appetite.

Smell has a great influence. The good smell of spice, of toasted bread, hot olive oil, broiling meat, tickle the nostrils and start the mouth watering. And there is something about the smell of herbs, thyme, sage, that comforts the very soul of man. Food that has such smells as these never goes abegging. Children and grown-ups alike, meet it halfway.

Taste is the most powerful of all incentives to hearty eating. The flavor of food adds to the delight of eating it. Saltless foods, flat vegetables, cake without a hint of vanilla, lemon or nutmeg, get no hand from the family. But let the perfume of gingerbread, flavored with cloves and ginger sweetened with molasses, float on the air and see the eager interest on the faces of the family waiting for the call. It is so easy to flavor food, and it is flavor that makes appetite.

It is all very well to say food is food and tell children to eat what is put before them and say nothing. It does not work for any length of time. Only an urgent hunger will make such food as that known as "plain cooking," go down. And when it is handed children day after day, their stomachs go on strike. They simply cannot feel hungry enough to eat the stuff another time. They are suffering from what I call "food fatigue."

When you wish to train a child to eat a variety of foods, which is the aim of all training in diet, be careful not to serve any one food, however good, too often. Be careful to change the recipe so that the thing looks different and smells different. When a child wearies of a food because it has been served without imagination he is likely to cling to his conviction that it is unpleasant and fight against it everytime it is offered. When you want to cultivate a taste for any one food make it a specialty.

Never forget in feeding children, and grown up people as well, that the mind has a lot to do with appetite. The attitude of mind is set by the experiences of the senses—eye, nose, mouth, contribute to the feeling that prompts appetite. The mind must approach the meal with a feeling of pleasure. The emotions aroused by the senses add their power to the whole. The atmosphere of the dining-room adds something more. There must be happiness, a feeling of good will, a harmony of mind and body at this hour. This secured, the welcome for the good-smelling, savoury meal is assured.

Good cooking, a varied menu well served, increases the power of nourishment the meal itself holds. There is more than vitamins to be considered here.

For guidance in solving the food problems of your children, send for Mr. Patri's booklet, "Eating," enclosing ten cents in coin. Address Mr. Angelo Patri, care the Monroe News-Star, Postoffice Box 75, Station O, New York, N. Y.

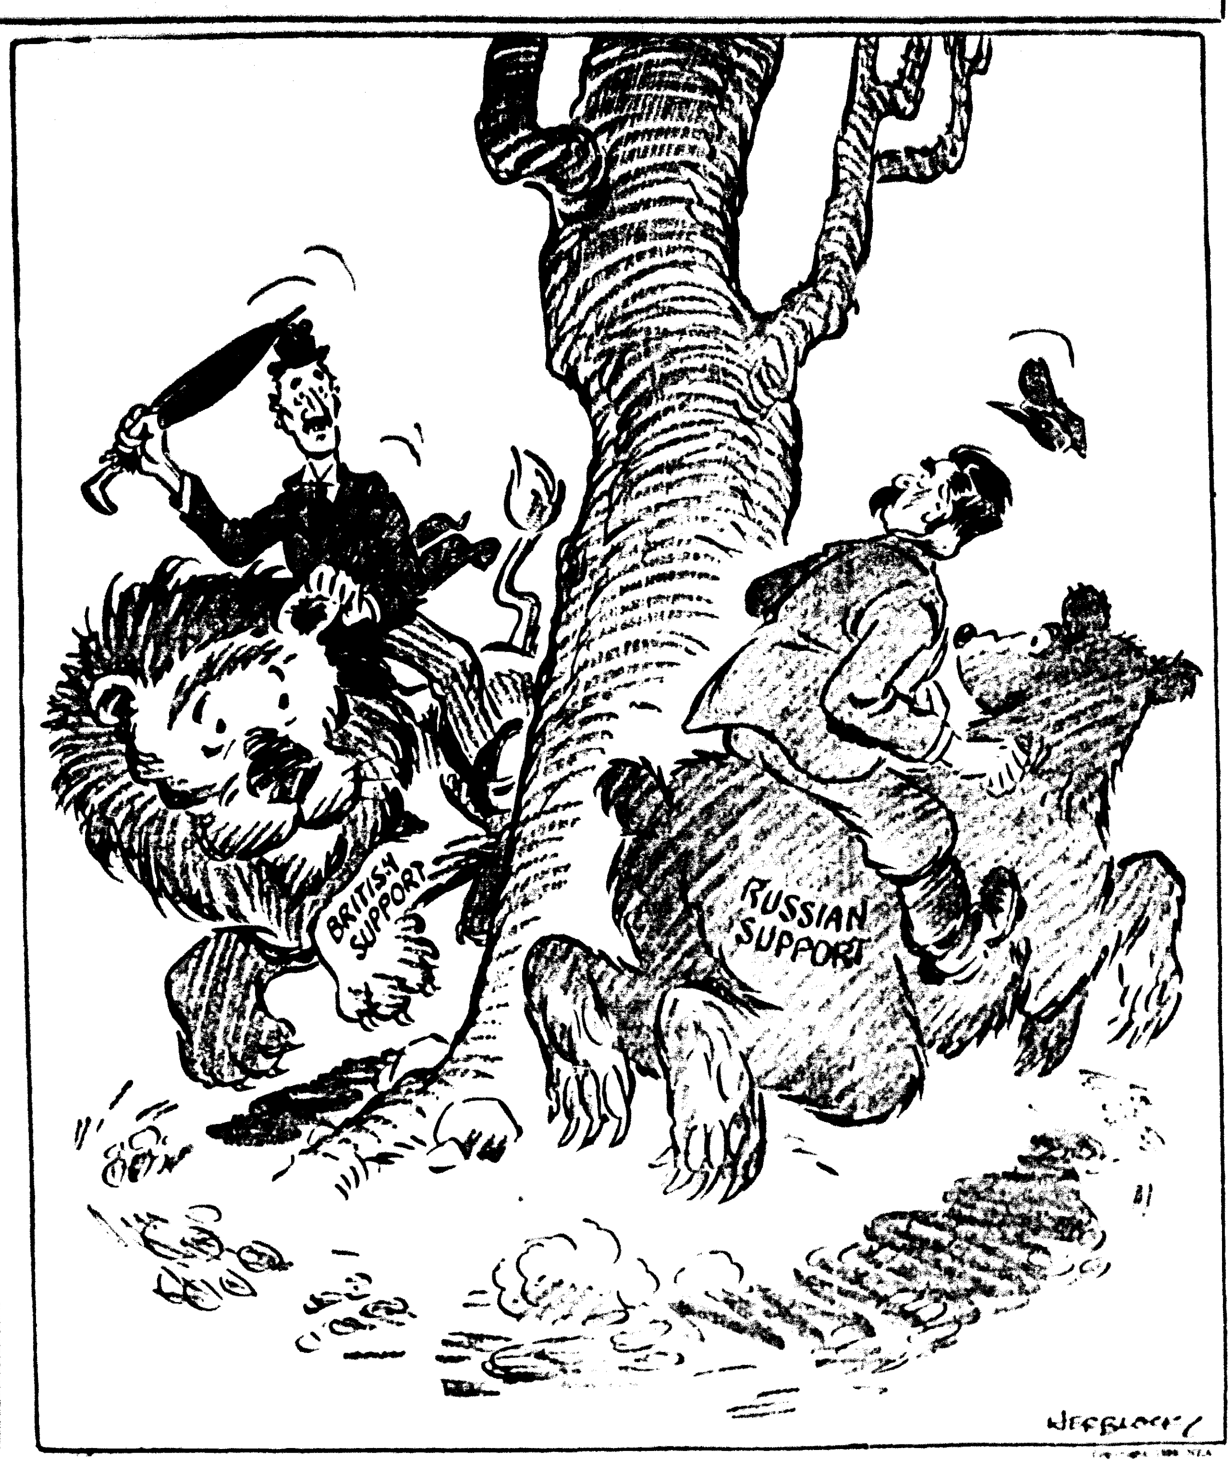
THE HUNT



Washington Daybook

By Preston Grover

WASHINGTON — Of the 435 members of the house, about 35 take regular workouts in their private gymnasium, another 35 work out occasionally, and an additional cluster show up for the lighter treatments calling for sun-lamp baths and massage.

They have a regular gymnasium in the new house building. Only since 1933 has there been more than a half-dozen regulars to show up for setting up exercises. In that year Representative Lambertson of Kansas was the only Republican. Since then the number of users has grown steadily.

House members almost to a man are wary of too much publicity about their gymnasium. Some won't go near the place because they fear their constituents would think they were spending all their time playing volley ball instead of working for the home folks.

A year or so ago pictures were taken of the members riding the mechanical horse, rolling on the medicine ball and taking hot baths. The publicity didn't sit well and they now have banned photographers.

Pay To Play

We were piloted through the place by Representative Richards of South Carolina, one of the group who in 1935 began to put the place really on its feet. Prior to that there was virtually no equipment. Now they ask contributions of $5 a year from regular users to buy equipment. This year there are 90 contributors, 31 of them Republicans.

Most of the gymnasium devices are designed to tighten up stomach muscles. Peter Henderson, a pretty tough drill sergeant during the war, keeps an eye on the members to see that they don't overdo. If a flabby 50-year-oldister begins jumping the rope, Pete stops him, too hard on the heart. He puts him to rowing. There is a regular rowing machine and a special new gadget that is like a nightmare of a ride on a bicycle. It folds up all between your legs and you stretch your stomach muscles, pulling it together again, rythmically.

Some members like running on a treadmill. They could get that exercise by galloping up and down the capitol corridors, but it would look funny. Most unusual device is a "belly-wobbler" that slowly rolls the tummy back and forth. Not many use it. It looks too foolish for words. They prefer the mechanical jigglers that shake you all over.

They're Too, Too Shy

One of Trainer Pete's troubles is self-consciousness among the members. Pete gets them over their shyness and soon they're rolling on medicine balls or playing games without concern for appearances.

Most of the regular exercisers prefer competitive games. Pete thinks it is because they are a competitive lot by nature.

Most of the regulars come from industrial centers, like New York and Michigan. Farm states contribute fewest. Pete finds the city members most aggressive at play. Occasionally he jacks up the country members. At handball or paddle-ball the country members like to let the ball come to them. Pete makes them run after it, the way the city members do.

"They get on to it soon," he says.

Competition between Republicans and Democrats is rare. They used to have party baseball teams, but that broke up when Representative Carter of Wyoming, the Republican's best pitcher, was retired to the bush leagues by the electorate.

The gymnasium is one of the few advantages house members have over senators. Their gymnasium is bigger and much better equipped.

It probably doesn't mean much, but neither Speaker Bankhead, Majority Leader Rayburn nor Minority Leader Martin makes much use of the gymnasium.

Monroe was host today, having with her the Good Will trippers from Shreveport and also the bankers and capitalists from the east who spent three hours in this city, arriving at 9:30 a.m. and leaving at 12:30 p.m. The Shreveport delegation arrived last night at [illegible] at 10:30 a.m. today. The Shreveport crowd took Monroe by storm when their special train hit town at 11 o'clock last night and held it until the train pulled out this morning.

The record for drilling in the Monroe gas fields since January 1 shows that at least 25 wells are being drilled all the time, according to records of the state department of conservation. At the present time there are more than 240 producing wells in the district. This number was [illegible] this week when seven wells began producing. At the time the last gauging chart of the field was drawn there were 175 producers and seven more were preparing to begin production.

The present agitation concerning the use of gas in the carbon industry has focused attention more than ever on this important line. Between 20 and 25 million dollars are invested in these plants and the payroll each month locally has at times run from $250,000 to $500,000.

RUBY CUPPLES

To the Editor:

As the information was not obtained from Ruby's parents until today concerning her life history we will publish the following facts.

Ruby Cupples was born at Atlanta, La., September 24, 1917. Her parents moved from Atlanta to Olla, La., when she was three years old. She was educated in Olla-Standard High school. She was an active member in the Sunday school, B. Y. P. U. and church work of the Baptist church in Olla.

After she had finished high school her parents moved to West Monroe in 1936. Then she went to Monroe for work. Being an active church worker she moved her membership from Olla to Chapel Hill church with her parents and little sister, but as her work was in Monroe and could not attend regularly at Chapel Hill she moved her membership to the First Baptist church of Monroe, where she was an active Sunday school and church worker until her death.

It was true she had a love affair with Pete Belbas, but it was broken up by her parents. Pete persuaded her to continue to work for him. She did so until he became jealous of her boy friend. After she quit work he again tried to persuade her to work for him but she said no, she was through with him. Then he threatened her life and that of her fiance. Then on Friday morning at 6:30 the fatal tragedy happened which has already been published.

Family Health

By Dr. Morris Fishbein

Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygeia, the Health Magazine

We depend so much on our eyes that we ought to give ourselves every benefit that scientific research [illegible] development of the eye from birth.

The eye of the newborn child is about 75 per cent of the size of the eye of the person fully grown. It is a shorter eye than the eye of an adult, and the lens of the eye of the [illegible] more circular [illegible].

During the first few years of life the eye grows rapidly and reaches [illegible] size at about the age of 8 or 9 years. [illegible]

The pupil of the eye is small at birth and [illegible] until about the end of the first year. During childhood and up to the age of [illegible] the pupil of the eye develops its maximum size.

Then it gradually becomes smaller so that in older people the pupil is often quite small. The size of the pupil depends to a large extent on the adaptation of the retina of the eye to light.

The retina is the nerve tissue at the back of the eye by which we are able to see. If a great deal of light suddenly comes into the eye, the pupil will become smaller by contracting.

Gradually the retina will adapt itself to the amount of light that is there. Then the pupil will again enlarge to approximately its natural size. There are, however, many different factors which may modify the size of the pupil from time to time.

The iris of the eye is the colored portion. People of dark races have a darker color in the iris than those of the blond races.

Most children are born with a blue iris, the color being due to the appearance of the color layer at the back of the iris. The color changes during the first years of life as the material becomes thicker.

Then the eye may gradually become brown or even darker. If there is a lack of pigment in the eye, it has a strange pinkish color such as is seen in albinos.

As the child grows, the eye becomes longer. The retina is farther back and the lens becomes flatter. This occurs mostly between the ages of 6 and 16.

If the rays of light which enter the eye focus short of the retina, the child is near-sighted. If, for example, the eye of the child focuses normally at the time of birth, it is sure to become nearsighted as the eye becomes longer.

The lens in children is quite flexible but as people grow older this flexibility tends to decrease. It is apparent, therefore, that parents should have the eyes of children tested regularly to make certain that they are getting the best vision possible with the type of eyes that they have at the time they are born.

Children must also be taught to use their eyes correctly. This involves coordination of nerves and muscles and of the brain which can be improved with proper training. As the child grows older it develops what the specialists call 'binocular vision' that is to say, it uses both eyes in seeing.

Sooner or later one eye becomes more important than the other and we tend to rely more on one eye than on the other. As Dr. W. S. Knighton has said, "One of the two assumes the role of the master eye."

CLIPPER LEAVES LISBON

LISBON, May 29.—(AP)—The Atlantic clipper took off at 7:12 a.m., Greenwich mean time (2:12 a.m., eastern standard time) today for Marseille. It is making the second of Pan-American Airways' regular flights between New York and Europe.

Klaas Moos, 105-year-old negro at Carnarvon, South Africa, suffered only abrasions when a motor car struck him and ran over both his legs.

HOLLYWOOD, May 29—I like to sit in the barroom of the Vine street Derby and watch the wheels of the Hollywood caste system go round. In will swagger one of our big-shot men about town—and as he swaggers, he carefully appraises the acquaintances he must greet. Unimportant folk he endows with a condescending, very casual nod and a certain I'm-not-sure-who-you-are-but-I-suppose-I've-met-you look. The in-betweeners rate a quick smile, timed perfectly to suit their social standing, and a somewhat vague "H'yuh." The top-notchers, if any happen to be present, are honored by an enthusiastic back-slapping, hand-pummelling and a flood of 'Old-boy-old-boys.' It's all worked out with the precision of naval etiquette—each man gets a salute of exactly as many guns as he is entitled to, and no more.

The same system is in force throughout Hollywood. When visitors tour a studio, their treatment depends entirely upon the idea entertained of their importance. Here's a story any dog lover will appreciate. Some time ago, Joan Blondell was presented with a Great Dane of the bluest blood—a dog worth hundreds of dollars. But, for some reason—or perhaps no reason—young Norman Scott Barnes, her six-year-old son, has never liked the monster. His one great love is the nondescript little mutt belonging to their gardener. After watching Norman's devotion to that friendly mongrel, Joan was so touched that she offered to trade the aristocratic Dane on even terms for it. But the gardener refused—even after she had fattened her offer with a goodly sum of cash. No amount of money, he said, could induce him to part with his best friend.

[illegible] Mary Healy, [illegible]

IN NEW YORK

By George Ross

NEW YORK, May [illegible]

[illegible]

The Green Hall was run by a dapper, smooth-faced fellow named Vincent Gebardi. Lewis found out later—much later—that the late Mr. Gebardi was known more familiarly as Machine Gun McGurn and had the dubious honor of being called the most desperate, heartless triggerman in a town which offered plenty of competition.

Can't Quit

It really made no difference, then, if all the night clubs were run by shady characters in those [illegible] prohibition days. The mistake Lewis made was not in going to work at the Green Hall but in trying to leave.

Beginning at $[illegible] a week, Lewis was pulling down ten times that sum in the course of a year. He was drawing capacity crowds every night from a neighboring club called The Rendezvous.

John Fogarty, the owner of the Rendezvous, tried to stem the tide. He offered Lewis a job at the Rendezvous at an even higher salary than he was getting. Lewis vows he was only going to tell McGurn of the offer with the object of getting a raise—but the 'Machine Gun' never let him get that far. He told him flatly that he would never open at the Rendezvous. And there Lewis made his greatest mistake. He [illegible] up and handed in his notice, effective at the end of that week.

Career's Eclipse

For a week before his scheduled debut at the rival club, Lewis was called on the phone every day and told quietly that he never would live to open at the Rendezvous. He was assigned a beefy bodyguard by Fogarty and warned never to stir without that burly shadow in his wake. It dawned on him by this time that even if he made a fortune he would never find the time to enjoy it.

The night of the opening was a harrowing one. Plain clothes men were sprinkled generously throughout the house, but Lewis kept thinking what a wonderful target his white shirtfront would make in the spotlight.

Nothing happened.

A week later, when he thought the worst was over, he answered a knock at his hotel room door. Three of McGurn's boys walked in. Lewis is convinced that if he had not had his pyjamas on, he would have been walked out of the hotel at pistol point and taken for the inevitable "ride." As it was, they decided to kill him then and there. Struggling vainly to avoid a knife thrust at his throat, [illegible] under a blow from [illegible]. MONROE SPLITS DOUBLE HEADER WITH EL DORADO

GAMES SUNDAY ARE WITNESSED BY BIG CROWD

Teams Meet Again Tonight In Third And Final Tilt Of Series

EL DORADO, Ark., May 29—(Special)—Sunday was "home run day" at [illegible]owland field as the league-leading Monroe White Sox divided a double header with the El Dorado Lions before a big crowd. The Sox took the first game, 4 to 2, behind the steady hurling of John Yelovic, and the Lions annexed the night cap when John Gregga bested Floyd Speer in a hurling duel, 3 to 0.

The teams end the three-game series Monday night.

Four home runs were hit in Sunday's twin bill, three of them going to El Dorado swatsmiths. The Lions' two runs in the opener were the result of homers by Pete Medak and Olek, El Dorado shortstop. Both were hit in the fifth inning [illegible] with nobody on the bases. It developed that the White Sox margin of victory was [illegible] by Frank Hackney's circuit clout with Manager Doug Taitt on base in the second frame. Monroe made its other two runs [illegible] of timely [illegible] Taitt.

Yelovic, with the exception of the home run balls [illegible] Medak and Olek, had little trouble with the Lions. He held [illegible] hits [illegible] struck out [illegible] and [illegible] walk a man [illegible] the White Sox [illegible] after the fourth [illegible] Monroe made [illegible] Frank Hackney [illegible]

SOUTHERN

(By Associated Press)

Assuming you weren't superstitious about numbers, the Southern association's unofficial organization, the league of Sunday circuit slappers, offered today a pitcher-defying 13 for your approval.

That uneven total of home runs was about the most uneven outcome of the Sunday program of double headers.

Little Rock split a bill with Chattanooga, giving up the first game 10 to 4, but edging a 3 to 2 margin on the nightcap. Birmingham blasted Nashville 14 to 4 and then bowed out in a 6 to 3 setto. Knoxville biffed New Orleans 10 to 6 and apologized in an 11 to 5 six-inning affair before darkness set in.

Only Atlanta and Memphis strayed from the fold. They fought 13 innings to an 11 to 10 decision in favor of Atlanta, and then it was getting dark. An attempt at a second game, which might have given all teams an even break, was stopped at the end of one inning.

That off-center circumstance put Atlanta's Crackers back atop the loop again, nosing out Chattanooga.

Head man of the circuit slappers is Nashville's Calvin Chapman, who [illegible] his eleventh yesterday. Bill Hafey of Knoxville went gunning for [illegible] place, however, beating out his eighth and ninth, while his teammates Norman Young and Proctor Richmond [illegible] double duty with their second and third and fourth and fifth, respectively. Happiness Boys Riding High Again In Baseball

Allen, Dean, Mungo And Newsom Enjoy Sunday's Games

By Judson Bailey

(Associated Press Sports Writer)

The happiness boys are riding right side up again.

If you don't remember the happiness boys, they're the fellows who get fun out of baseball—which is a bitter business for a lot of their associates.

That makes it easy to single them out of Sunday's big major league show:

Johnny Allen, the temperamental righthander whose tattered shirt caused a furore in the American league and ended up in a department store window (the shirt, not Allen).

Dizzy Dean, the ex (?) popoff whose $185,000 pitching arm has been the most debated wing in all baseball.

Van Lingle Mungo, the lean Carolinian who probably has had more fights, fines and suspensions than any current big leaguer and who set some kind of a record last year by drawing a salary of approximately $1,000 an inning.

Buck Newsom, most-traded, much-misunderstood [illegible] who once undertook to pitch both games of a doubleheader and in six seasons has played with four different American league clubs, not counting the St. Louis Browns twice.

For further details see back copies of your favorite newspaper.

Allen went the route yesterday for the first time this spring to give the Cleveland Indians a 6-0 shutout over the Chicago White Sox on three hits. Naturally this was most encouraging to the Cleveland people because Allen, who won 17 games in a row in 1937 only to lose his finale, had a bad year last season and an operation on his arm during the winter hadn't helped him previously.

Similarly Newsom's seven-hit 6-2 performance against his recent teammates, the Browns, gave the Detroit folks something to cheer for. [illegible] was Newsom's second triumph within a week and came on top of good [illegible] by Tommy Bridges, Paul Trout and Schoolboy Rowe.

The New York Yankees, who saw a winning streak broken at 12 games [illegible] have built [illegible] five-game string [illegible] Athletics [illegible] featured by George Selkirk's two homers [illegible] the same [illegible] game the [illegible]

The Boston Red Sox also snatched a [illegible] fourth in a [illegible] the Washington Senators.

Dean [illegible] the Pirates [illegible] the Chicago Cubs [illegible] left them [illegible] the National league.

Mungo [illegible] of the box [illegible] the Brooklyn Dodgers 16-12 [illegible] triumph over the Boston Bees. Each team used four pitchers and Mungo not only [illegible] and a fraction innings [illegible] contributed [illegible]

[illegible] lead in the National league by [illegible] a double-header at St. Louis [illegible] and 8-4. Curt Davis [illegible] the Reds [illegible] Paul Derringer was as steady as ever in taking the nightcap.

The New York Giants crowded five runs into the eighth inning to beat the last-place Phillies, 7 to 2.

PAUL RUNYAN, HENRY PICARD AGAIN IN TIE

Second Playoff Will Be Required To Decide Metropolitan Title

By Bill White

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., May 29—(AP)—You can't beat perfection.

Ask Paul Runyan, P. G. A. champion and pro at the Metropolis club, where the 32nd annual Metropolitan golf championship—normally a three-day affair—is now in its fifth day.

As Runyan and Henry Picard started out today to play off the tie that still engulfed them, the story of Sunday's playoff between Runyan, Picard and Vic Ghezzi of Deal, N. J., revolved around a shot that should live as one of the real classics of modern golf.

Those three favorites had tied at 283 Saturday at the end of the regulation 72-hole play of the "Met," but there's nothing "regulation" about this preview of next month's national open.

Runyan's magnificent golf yesterday on the front nine and the next four holes had made Ghezzi yell "uncle." That left only Picard, but Henry had the answer, and it came on the 18th hole.

Runyan was one stroke up on Picard and was on the green, some 25 or 30 feet away from the cup in two. That left him nicely in for his par. And that, of course, meant that Picard had to find a birdie to tie. Standard figures weren't enough.

Yards away and in the middle of the fairway, the courageous Hershey pro chose [illegible] and shot his eight iron, stroked it perfectly—and the ball, after a high arching flight, skidded to a stop a bare two feet from the cup.

The gallery, pulling for dear life for Homester Runyan, had to cheer.

Paul gallantly tried to win with a long, curling putt, but the ball died inches short.

Then Henry measured his putt as a long-threatening rain started to fall and tapped the ball home—sending the tourney into another play-off.

Both Picard and Runyan played the windswept course in one under par 70's, but Ghezzi slipped to 77.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

By Eddie Brietz

NEW YORK, May 29—(AP)—Dugout dope: They are pulling wires to get a left-hand hitting outfielder, who can really slug, out of the American league and into the Dodger menagerie. . . . Rumor foundry now has Fred Haney due for the ax. Probably about as much truth to it as to the Detroit-Greenberg phoney. . . . The Yanks will have to struggle along a bit longer without DiMaggio, whose bum foot is acting up again. . . . What with intentional passes being dished out to Billy Myers, the Reds must have the National league pitchers buffaloed sure enough. . . . Terry may come back from Quakertown tonight with a Philly pitcher as an added attraction.

It's a pity Joe Sawyer, pro at Rip's Sutton place tennis courts, don't give a darn for autographs. . . . The other day he played against Katherine Hepburn, Helen Wills Moody and Rudy Vallee in succession.

Rue de Sockerue: Harry Lenny, the smart old fight manager, warns Lou Nova he'd better depend on science and not punching to beat Baer. We say ditto to that. . . . Promoter E. Retach of Paris has invited Sixto Escobar, the bantamweight champ, to come over and cross blades with Peter Kane. . . . Mike Jacobs will make it worth your while if you can come up with a welterweight to fight Henry Armstrong. . . . Talk of a Maxie Rosenbloom comeback is still in the tap room stage.

Observation ward: Paul Trout, the Detroit pitcher, can chew gum and tobacco at the same time. Yum, yum. . . . The British polo players said they didn't care about seeing the Giants or Yankees, but would like to see the Dodgers. . . . Earl Mann, president of the Atlanta Crackers, says he has the fastest man in baseball in John Rucker (a nephew of old Nap) and would like to prove it with dough. . . . Mike Jacobs says he'll be transmitting fights by television in two months—at a cost of a slug per mile per hour.

George M. Varnell, Seattle Times: "Tony Galento says he'll quit drinking beer until after his fight with Joe Louis. . . . His health might be better if he'd pass up Louis instead of the beer."

When the Giants and Dodgers hook up in that to-the-death double header tomorrow, Ford C. Frick, president of the National league, will be out on Long Island leading the Frick Furies against Lowell Thomas' Nine Old Men in a softball game. . . . Judge Landis ought to do something about it and that's fact.

Cocktail hour: Elmer Layden, fishing around Minocqua, Wis., got his limit every day, just as he does during the halfback season. . . . Frank Winchell, Florida's No. 1 baseball fan, is in town and can be reached at the Stork club, day or night. . . . Fordham will tee off at football practice August 28. . . . Long John Woodruff, counted on as the four-minute miler of tomorrow, says he'll do no more galloping after the Olympics. . . . Old Bronko Nagurski is trying to decide whether to stick to wrestling or play one more season with the Chicago Bears.

Leo Durocher: "We bought Poffenberger on Easter Sunday and I'm afraid the Easter bunny laid us the biggest egg of all."

33 READY FOR MOTOR SPEED RACE TUESDAY

Roads Into Indianapolis Jammed With Prospective Spectators

INDIANAPOLIS, May 29—(AP)—Thirty-three guys—just ordinary fellows like your next door neighbor, but who picked a tougher way of earning a living—will take off tomorrow in the 27th annual Indianapolis motor speedway race, shooting for a two-fisted wad of cash.

One forlorn lad will be left on the sidelines, however. He is George Robson of Huntington Park, Calif., who was crowded out of the starting lineup for the local classic—by a margin of two-tenths of a mile an hour and two minutes of running time.

Billy Devore of St. John, Kans., was "the crowder-outer." He started his qualifying run two minutes before the 6 p.m. central standard time deadline yesterday and finished with a speed of 116.527 miles an hour, to leave Robson with 116.306 miles an hour as the 34th qualifier in speed and out of the race.

Roads leading into Indianapolis were jammed with race-goers today. The lineup of cars waiting for the opening of the speedway gates at 6 a.m. tomorrow stretched out for blocks. Tavern keepers had decks cleared for their biggest night of the year.

At the speedway office, all was smiles. The ticket sale brought indications of a 150,000 gate, officials said.

The field that will go to the post tomorrow will be the fastest in the history of the race. The thirty-three starters averaged 123.547 miles an hour as compared with last year's 120.032 miles an hour.

Both one-lap and qualifying records were broken in the trials and Jimmy Snyder, one-time Chicago milkman, was the fellow who performed both feats. He wheeled a six-cylinder creation, entered by Joel Thorne, New Rochelle (N. Y.) millionaire, around the track for ten miles at 130.138 miles an hour for the qualifying record and one lap was at 130.757 miles an hour.

The first 28 qualifiers made the starting lineup at speed of 120 miles an hour or better, and one of them—Babe Stapp of Los Angeles—hit 125 miles an hour right on the nose. It was the second time in speedway history a driver had qualified without it being necessary to carry his speed out to at least one decimal point.

Four former winners, who between them have accounted for six Indianapolis races, will be in the starting field. No. 1 man both in races won and for being mentioned as a favorite again is Louis Meyer of Huntington Park, Calif., victor in 1928, 1933 and 1936. Other former winners trying again are Kelly Petillo of Los Angeles, victor in 1935, Wilbur Shaw of Indianapolis, 1937, and Floyd Roberts, 1938, and trying to be the first man ever to win two races in a row here.

500,000 GREET KING, QUEEN IN VANCOUVER

Royal Couple Ready For Big Day After 36-Hour Rest

VANCOUVER, B. C., May 29.—(AP)—Rolling along in their 12-car palace train through 500 miles of scenic grandeur from the top of the Rockies to the Pacific coast, King George and Queen Elizabeth came today to Vancouver, metropolis of British Columbia, where 500,000 people waited to welcome them.

After their 36-hour rest at Banff, the royal couple was ready for a big day. The civic reception, ceremonial address and a drive through the city, with presentations and handshaking all along the line, were before them.

Late today they will board the steamship Princess Marguerite for Victoria, capital of British Columbia and the most English of all Canadian cities. Victoria is the only place in the dominion where you buy "petrol" for your car instead of gasoline and where cricket, tea and rugger make wandering Englishmen feel much at home.

Victoria is the western terminus of the royal tour, and, after drinking in the demonstrations of loyalty and homage prepared at Canada's gateway to the Pacific, the royal couple will turn eastward Wednesday morning for the long journey back through Canada in preparation for the four-day visit to Washington and New York June 8-11.

The British sovereigns came to Vancouver over the scenic route from Banff, which they left yesterday morning in an automobile that took them to Lake Louise and on across the continental divide to Field, where they caught their special train.

Forty newspaper men and photographers, who missed the pilot train traveling 30 minutes ahead of the royal train, raced across the mountains at breakneck speed and caught their train at the same station. They had been caught in the Banff hotel at the moment when the king and queen were leaving and had to display the the usual deference to royalty by waiting until the king and queen left—with Canadian royal mounted police on hand to see they did it.

Before leaving Banff King George and Queen Elizabeth attended morning services at St. George's church. The queen was gay and vivacious. King George appeared rested and in evident good humor as they took leave of the whole hotel staff at Banff. Everybody from the manager and his four-year-old daughter to the chefs, waiters, maids and bellboys lined up along the driveway to wave farewell.

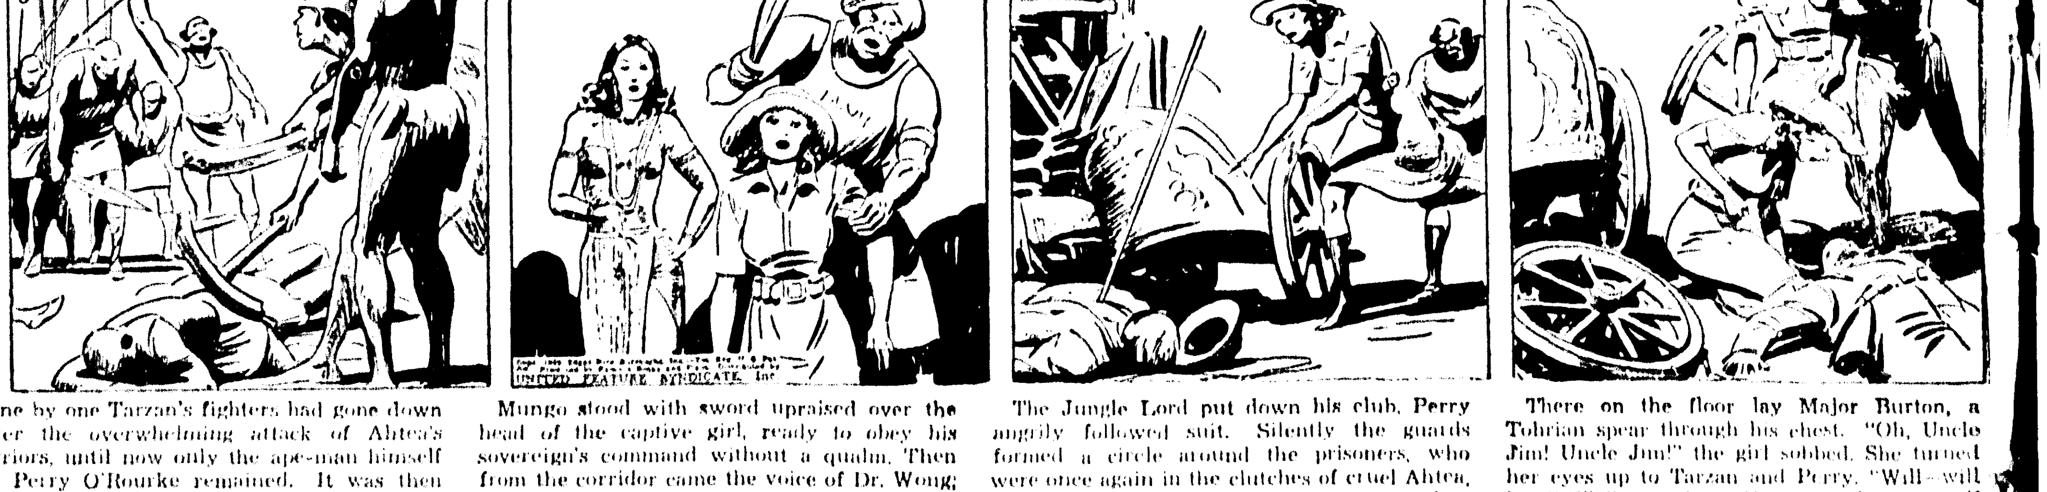
TARZAN AND THE FIRES OF TOHR

By Edgar Rice Burroughs



One by one Tarzan's fighters had gone down under the overwhelming attack of Ahtea's warriors, until now only the ape-man himself and Perry O'Rourke remained. It was then that Ahtea called out to them. "Tarzan! O'Rourke! Surrender or Janette Burton dies!"

Mungo stood with sword upraised over the head of the captive girl, ready to obey his sovereign's command without a qualm. Then from the corridor came the voice of Dr. Wong; with a strange note of anxiety. "Surrender, Tarzan. Ahtea will do as she threatens."

The Jungle Lord put down his club. Perry angrily followed suit. Silently the guards formed a circle around the prisoners, who were once again in the clutches of cruel Ahtea. Suddenly Janette uttered a sharp cry, ran forward a few steps, and dropped to her knees.

There on the floor lay Major Burton, a Tohrian spear through his chest. "Oh, Uncle Jim! Uncle Jim!" the girl sobbed. She turned her eyes up to Tarzan and Perry. "Will—will he die?" Burton himself answered in a small voice. "I—I'm done for, Janette."

MANY MARKETS TO BE CLOSED TUESDAY

(By Associated Press)

All European security and commodity markets were closed today (Monday) Whitsuntide holiday. Canadian exchanges remained open.

On Tuesday, Memorial day, domestic security and commodity exchanges will close, with the exception of the New Orleans cotton exchange, Savannah naval stores and various livestock markets.

Canadian and European financial exchanges will operate as usual Tuesday.

MARKETS AT A GLANCE

NEW YORK, May 29.—(AP)—Stocks firm; rally follows early dip. Bonds improved; rails in demand. Curb higher; industrial specialties lead upturn. Foreign exchange steady; sterling up. Cotton lower; foreign hedging. Sugar steady; Cuban demand. Coffee mixed; outside buying; local selling.

CHICAGO—Wheat about steady. Corn higher. Cattle steady. Hogs fully steady.

NEW YORK STOCKS

By Victor Eubank

NEW YORK, May 29.—(AP)—The stock market shifted aimlessly the greater part of today's session but buying came in at the last and changed small minus signs for leaders into gains running to two points.

It was one of those loafing days when the ticker tape napped at frequent intervals. A modest pick-up in the final hour brought a turnover of approximately 500,000 shares.

NEW YORK, May 29.—(AP)—Most stocks were unable to get a foothold on another recovery shift in today's market.

The list tilted slightly upward at the start but soon backed down.

Dealings were exceptionally light throughout. Near the fourth hour minor declines predominated.

Attendance in the boardrooms was the smallest in some time, many traders continuing the holiday they started Saturday. The exchange will recess tomorrow for Memorial day.

Speculative clues from abroad were lacking as all European markets were suspended in observance of Whitsuntide.

Absence of selling pressure generally was attributed to further tax revision hopes, thoughts of a possible new administration lend-spend program and the belief congress would iron out its differences and adjourn by mid-July after passing some bills desired by industry.

Bonds were irregularly higher and commodities mixed.

Off a shade the greater part of the day were United States Steel, Bethlehem, Chrysler, General Motors, Anaconda, United States Rubber, Montgomery Ward, Sears Roebuck, Douglas Aircraft, International Harvester, Western Union, du Pont and Westinghouse.

Business news was a bit spotty, with seasonal lulls beginning to appear in a number of lines.

Motors were still handicapped by the Briggs Manufacturing strike at Detroit which has hit automobile companies depending on this concern for accessories.

At the same time a note of cheer came from the lumber field where the National Lumber Manufacturers association reported output for the week ended May 20 reached a peak for the year to date two per cent ahead of the previous week and 27 per cent larger than in the corresponding period a year ago.

Notice was taken of comments of the Standard Statistics company to the effect "the redemption of the New Deal to a spending [illegible] the [illegible] generally [illegible] last November is probably now [illegible] a trough and an uptrend, artificially stimulated though it may be, should begin to make visible progress within the next two or three months."

30,000 GRAVES DECORATED IN FRANCE TODAY

Americans And French Pay Honor To Dead U. S. Soldiers

PARIS, May 29.—(AP)—The graves of 30,000 American soldiers who fought and died in the mud of northern France were decorated today in memorial services under the Stars and Stripes and the French tricolor.

Honor detachments of French troops and American and French delegations attended the ceremonies, which were held a day earlier than the American Memorial day to coincide with the French Whitsun holiday.

The American Overseas Memorial Day association, cooperating with the American Legion, decorated graves throughout France, including those of six Union and Confederate sailors who fought a Civil war battle off Cherbourg. Services were held in Paris churches and at all war cemeteries.

French war industries are melting down scrap iron picked up from the World war battlefields. Recently collected in Belleau Wood were a captured German cannon, still pointed toward Paris, rusty machine-guns and piles of abandoned rifles.

After placing a wreath on the tomb of the French unknown soldier today, United States Ambassador William C. Bullitt was scheduled to speak at Suresnes cemetery, outside Paris, and at the Lafayette Escadrille memorial at Garches.

Bullitt and Premier Daladier spoke yesterday in dedication of a new American Legion cemetery at Neuilly a suburb of Paris, starting the week-long commemoration.

"Let us not forget that there are times when men must take up arms to save all that is worthy in human life and that if arms break peace they also defend it," Bullett said.

Daladier said he recognized the right of American women who lost sons and husbands in the World war "to ask us what we have made out of so much suffering and so many sacrifices.

"France has not been an unworthy guardian of this sublime heritage. For 20 years she has consecrated all her efforts to peace among men.

"But like all free nations she could not allow to be endangered that which seems to her to be more precious than life itself. * * * Any attempt at hegemony or domination would find her determined to defend her liberty and the liberty of the world. * * *"

Don't scratch and claw itching skin. This tends to irritate and spread inflammation, and is dangerous. Skin itching, when due to Scabies, Eczema, Ringworm, Athlete's Foot, Surface Rash, or inoccuous insect bites, is soothed by applying Tetterine, a quickly palliative preparation that acts with surprising speed to kill every parasite it contacts and your itching goes galloping away. MAY GROW RUBBER ON SUGAR LANDS

NEW ROADS, La., May 29—(AP)—Louisiana sugar cane growers, with nearly half their lands idle under acreage quota restrictions, were told today they might turn their crop into a new product—artificial rubber.

That forecast was made by Allan Ramsey Wurtele, former lieutenant commander, United States navy, who stirred acids and turpentine yesterday into a container of common granulated white sugar and got a black spongy mass with the properties of crude rubber.

He said the experiment was prompted by reports of a Swiss patented process which produces from cane sugar, beet sugar or sugar mill waste a 78 to 83 per cent yield of artificial rubber which has all the properties of natural rubber and can be vulcanized.

HOLIDAYS GIVE EUROPE REST

Russia Holds Secret Answer To Continent's Biggest Question

(By Associated Press)

Whitsun holidays gave Europe's diplomats a rest and Europe's millions at least temporary respite from alarms today with Soviet Russia holding secret the answer to the continent's biggest question.

That was: Will Russia accept Britain's proposals, approved by France, for bringing the Soviet union into the British-French front?

Moscow still was silent on the identical messages delivered to the Kremlin Saturday by representatives of Britain and France but in London the press and public took agreement for granted.

Some informed British circles believed, despite absence of any outward sign of Russian approval or disapproval, that Ivan Maisky, Soviet ambassador to London, would be instructed to accept the proposals for a mutual assistance accord on his return there today from Geneva.

British optimism, in which a British-French-Russian line-up was hailed generally as a great assurance of peace, appeared to have swung feeling sharply in favor of Prime Minister Chamberlain as he began his third year at the head of Britain's government.

Some foreign observers in Moscow thought that Russia, however, might wait to see what Britain and France would do in connection with recent Japanese actions in the far east before committing herself definitely.

In France, the graves of 30,000 American soldiers who were killed in the World war were decorated in memorial services held a day in advance of the American memorial day in order to coincide with the European holiday.

In Spain, nationalists said Generalissimo Francisco Franco would fulfill his promise to send home all foreign troops by the end of the week. The German condor legion of 5,000 already has sailed, about 12,000 Italians will embark at Cadiz on Wednesday, about 500 Portuguese have been concentrated at Salamanca for home-going and the return of Moorish troops to Morocco also has begun.

MONROE MAN FACES 5 TRAFFIC CHARGES IN AUTO COLLISION

C. B. McIntosh, who gave his address as Eighth street, Monroe, Monday faced five city court charges as a result of a week-end collision between automobiles reported driven by himself and J. R. Pratt, 217 Washington street.

Accused of crashing his automobile against Pratt's automobile in the 300 block of Washington street, McIntosh was charged with running a red traffic light, reckless driving, drunken driving, doing damage to property and failing to stop after an accident.

Police Officers H. L. Tolbert and G. W. Horton arrested McIntosh after automobile and foot patrolmen had been notified to be on the lookout for him.

MODERN WOODMEN TO MEET

BODY OF INFANT FOUND IN YARD

Coroner Wolff To Determine Whether Baby Born Dead Or Alive

The body of an infant, in a bad state of decomposition, was found Monday morning shortly before 8 o'clock in the rear yard of the residence of J. L. Frances, 317 Calypso street.

Coroner Irving J. Wolff said the infant evidently was born from 48 to 72 hours before, and that the body was being prepared at a local funeral home for an examination in which he would determine whether or not the infant was born dead or alive.

The infant had full pre-natal development, the coroner said, but because of the condition of the body an examination to determine its sex and other facts was not to be made until the body had been prepared for the examination at the funeral home.

It was considered probable that a dog took the body from a garbage can or from some other place of concealment.

Police Captain Frank Pettit and Deputy Sheriff Frank Cline worked with the coroner at the scene of the discovery of the body.

CHILD LEAVES CLINIC

Freddie Teer, 5-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. E. Teer of Dallas, Tex., who underwent an emergency operation for appendicitis here recently at Dr. C. H. Mosely's clinic, was removed Monday to the residence of an uncle, J. C. Brantley, 505 South Third street. The child will remain at the residence until about June 10, when he and his mother will return to Dallas by airplane. Mrs. Teer and the child were visiting relatives here when the operation became necessary.

BAD CHECK CHARGED

Roy Byers, local man, was arrested Sunday morning by City Detectives L. G. Parker and D. J. Bedsole on a charge of giving a bad check.

BRAKEMAN RESCUES WOMAN ON TRESTLE

WASHINGTON, May 29.—(AP)—Clinging to a fellow trainman, R. C. McGaha, 40-year-old brakeman, leaned from the caboose of a freight train yesterday as it backed onto a trestle, and snatched Mrs. Elizabeth Funderburke from the tracks.

Mrs. Funderburke's companions on a fishing party threw themselves clear when the train rumbled out on the seldom-used span, but the woman was too terrified to move. McGaha, aided by Conductor George W. Moler, 48, held her clear of the ties until the train rolled to a stop.

"I've seen those things often enough in the movies," Moler said later, "but I didn't think I'd ever be in one myself."

41 PLANES DOWNED

TOKYO, May 29.—(AP)—Domei, Japanese news agency, reported today from Hsinking, Manchoukuo, that Japanese forces had downed 41 "Mongol" airplanes in the vicinity of Lake Buir. The dispatch lacked further details.

BURGLARY JOB NETS $116 LOOT

Seale-Lily Ice Cream Company Entered Early Monday Morning

Succeeding in their fourth attempt to gain entrance to the Seale-Lily Ice Cream company, 1926 DeSiard street, early Monday morning, burglars stole $116.73 from the cash register and from a place of concealment beneath a counter, according to a report filed at police headquarters following an investigation made by Detective L. G. Parker.

The burglars took $22 from the cash register and $74.73 from beneath the counter, the report said.

Failing to gain entrance through two side windows, the burglars attempted to pry open the front door with an iron bar, but failed in this attempt. Entrance then was made by removing a screen from the front transom and opening the transom.

ARREST 2 NEGROES FOR HEALTH UNIT

Having allegedly failed to report at the venereal clinic of the Ouachita parish health unit to take their weekly inoculations, two negroes, a man and a woman, were arrested by police in separate cases during the week-end at the request of G. Douglas Williams, director of the health unit. The negroes were detained by police on charges of vagrancy.

Dr. Williams said the venereal clinic has been receiving excellent cooperation from its patients in the matter of reporting for inoculations, but intimated that at any time such cooperation is not willingly given that other means will be taken to obtain it.

Aside from the city court charge of vagrancy, a state law empowers public health unit officials to have arrests made in cases where persons with venereal disease decline to take treatment.

Filthy Roaches in the Kitchen?

Here's how to get rid of them. First, keep the floor under the sink, refrigerator, stove, etc., free from dampness and food particles. That's what attracts bugs. Second, get a can of Bee Brand Insect Powder. Sprinkle it in all corners, back of and under the sink, refrigerator, stove, etc., and around openings where pipes go through the floor. Blow it into cracks and crevices, back of and under wall boards. When roaches scurry out, give them another dose of powder. Third, sprinkle Bee Brand Powder in the runways where roaches travel. Repeat these directions at weekly intervals and your kitchen will soon be rid of roaches. Bee Brand Insect Powder really kills roaches, ants and other crawling insects quickly. [illegible] Bee Brand Insect Powder. It's sold with a guarantee of satisfaction or your money back. Three sizes [illegible]

NOTE: You can also kill roaches and ants, [illegible] with Bee Brand Insect Spray. Read directions on can.

YES, GENTLEMEN, I'M CONVINCED THE TWO "PRINCES" ARE IMPOSTORS—COMMON HOUSE THIEVES AND SWINDLERS—PASSING THEMSELVES OFF AS THE REAL ROYALTY.
PRINCES
THIS SHIRT THE COAST GUARD PICKED UP PROVES IT! THE MESSAGE, ACCORDING TO THE INTERPRETER, SAYS THE REAL PRINCES ARE BEING HELD ABOARD A BOAT SOMEWHERE OFF SHORE.
THE HOAX MUST NOT BE REVEALED UNTIL THE REAL PRINCES HAVE BEEN RESCUED, OTHERWISE THEY MAY BE KILLED.
YES! EVEN THE BOVANIAN GOVERNMENT MUST NOT KNOW THE REAL FACTS.
COMMANDER, OUR NEXT STEP IS TO COOPERATE WITH YOUR COAST GUARD CREWS TO LOCATE THAT PRISON BOAT.
RIGHT.
MEANWHILE, THE PRISON BOAT HAS ALREADY RUN INTO TROUBLE.
QUICK! LIE DOWN IN THAT TANK AND PUT THESE RUBBER HOSES IN YOUR MOUTHS.
WE'RE COMING ABOARD. WE WANT TO LOOK YOU OVER.
YOU CAN'T BOARD US—WE'RE OUTSIDE THE TWELVE-MILE LIMIT.

I'LL PUT IN THIS CRANK CASE OIL.. SO THE WATER WON'T BE TRANSPARENT.
GET OFF YOUR MASK—HERE THEY ARE!
HM, IT'S A SCREWY LOOKING OUTFIT IF YOU ASK ME. WHAT DO YOU CALL THAT?
WE'VE GOT ENGINE TROUBLE, CHIEF. WE'VE BEEN OVERHAULING THE DIESEL—WE'RE CLEANING THE PARTS IN THERE.
MEANWHILE, IN ONE OF THE CITY'S PALATIAL HOMES WHERE THE "PRINCES" HAVE JUST BEEN ENTERTAINED...
YOUR HIGHNESS, YOUR VALET IS HERE.
OH, YES, HERE IS OUR LAUNDRY.
AS THE PRINCES' VALET MAKES HIS WAY TOWARD HIS CAR, WITH THE BAGS OF "LAUNDRY"

Tarzan
by EDGAR RICE BURROUGHS
KULEEAH THE TREE-WOMAN
TO ESCAPE THE DEADLY MISSILES OF HIS FOES, TARZAN THREW HIMSELF QUICKLY UPON THE GROUND.
FROM EVERY QUARTER LINGOOS RAN TOWARD HIM, EAGER TO DELIVER THE STROKE OF DEATH.
MEANWHILE, AT THE FOREST'S EDGE, A LEGION OF MYSTERIOUS TREE-WOMEN DROPPED TO EARTH.
WITH SPIRITED CRIES THEY ASSAILED THE HALF-MEN, MANY OF WHOM TURNED TO MEET THIS NEW MENACE.
WITH GAY ENTHUSIASM THEY BATTLED THEIR WAY TO TARZAN, WHO WAS ENGAGED WITH A LINGOO BAND.
"LET US BEAR AWAY THE STRANGERS," SHOUTED KULEEAH, CHIEF OF THE AMAZONS; "THE HANDSOME ONE IS MINE!"
THE APE-MAN HAD NO TIME TO WONDER WHO OR WHAT SHE WAS, BUT HE RECOGNIZED IN HER A REMARKABLE ALLY. AS THEY FOUGHT SIDE BY SIDE, HE MARVELED AT HER STRENGTH AND SPARKLING COURAGE.
AND NOW AND THEN KULEEAH CAST A GLANCE OF FRANK APPROVAL AT THE MIGHTY JUNGLE LORD.
SUDDENLY TARZAN WAS STRUCK FROM BEHIND. HE FELL UNCONSCIOUS. KULEEAH SWOOPED DOWN----
...GATHERED HIM IN HER ARMS, AND DASHED THROUGH THE RANKS OF THE BEWILDERED HALF-MEN.
